the first day of the Jewish month Tishri, will mark the beginning of the Jewish High Holidays. These holidays of deep religious significance, will commence with the feast of Rosh Hashanah, or New Year. The New Year will be followed by Ten days of Penitence, which reach their climax in the Day of Atonement, October 7.

"On the New Year all the inhabitants of the earth pass before Him as sheep before a shepherd." In these words the ancient Jewish law book, the Mishna, refers to the significance of the day. It is a day of judgment when the sins and the merits of all are weighed by the Divine Judge. The Talmud tells that in this annual New Year's Judgment scene three books lie open before the Most High. In one book, the Book of Life, the names of the perfectly righteous, the sinless, are inscribed; the second book, the book of death has recorded in it the names of the utterly wicked; and the third book is of the ordinary "middle type" of men, in whose behalf judgment is suspended through the ten days of penitence, until the Day of Atonement when the decision is finally made and recorded.

The services for the day are especially solemn. Prayers in prose and poetry, dwelling upon the theme of God's Judgment of man, are recited and sung. The Ram's horn, the "Shofar," summoning men to prayer and repentance, is sounded in all synagogues. At the close of the service the worshippers greet each other with the words, "May you be written down for a good year."

Orthodox Jews observe many ceremonies which suggest the ideas and motions of the day. In the home honey and fruits are eaten and the pious wish expressed, "May it be Thy will to renew to us a good and sweet year." During the day orthodox Jews will go to a river, shake crumbs from their clothes and recite among other prayers the verse from Micah, "And you will cast into the depths of the sea all their sins." While orthodox Jews will observe the feast for two days, September 27 and 28 this year, Reform Jews return to the ancient Palestinian custom and observe but one day.

There will be special services at Temple Emeth in this city, according to the usual custom. A student from the Union College at Cincinnati will be here to conduct them.

The Jewish temple in this city has been recently overhauled and refurbished and is now one of the handsomest church edifices in the city with a rapidly increasing congregation.

All Jewish business houses will close at sundown Tuesday and remain closed until sundown Wednesday.

HAND work commands respect in every field of endeavor—hand work is careful, painstaking, precise work—hand work is used more largely in our made to measure clothes than in any clothes you can buy.

Hand tailoring makes style permanent and enduring—it isn't nearly as fast nor as cheap as machine work, but it's so much better that there's really no comparison between the two.
